Definitions

Glass fiber reinforced gratings have been developed for pedestrian facilities. This means that the environment must enable normal conditions for working activities. The standard quality of the gratings (IFR/ECO/FD/MD/PH-XFR) will offer an excellent corrosion resistance, combined with a long lifetime. This corrosion resistance will be secured in all indoor-, outdoor- or sub sea applications where there is not a frequent exposure to aggressive chemicals. In case, however, the gratings are exposed to aggressive chemicals and/or vapors (frequent or infrequently) a special chemical grade has to be advised. The Intergrate VE-FR/VE-XFR then will offer besides a corrosion resistance also a chemical resistance. In case a very specific chemical resistance is required, ALPINAGRATE can offer gratings, produced with a special resin grade, to be agreed upon. For a continuous and full exposure to chemicals (f.i. in a gas scrubber) these gratings were not developed, although they can offer a satisfying service compared to steel. In that case, depending the service conditions, a guarantee will not be relevant. It must be clearly understood, that the guarantee, given by ALPINAGRATE is based on normal pedestrian load, respecting the by ALPINAGRATE published or confirmed maximum values for load, storage and treatment.
